

Constraints before and after reduction

Each point represents one successfully processed feature model. Points below the dashed line represent models where the number of constraints was reduced.

