

Feature reduction by initial model size

Each point represents one successfully processed feature model. The horizontal axis uses logarithmic space

